Before she went and got herself a footballer boyfriend, there was always talk of the bubbling chemistry between Christine Bleakley and Adrian Chiles.

But if he was keen to share a kiss with his Daybreak co-presenter under the mistletoe, then he missed out last night.

Bleakley was last night auctioning her kiss to the highest bidder at a Christmas lights switch on in London's Covent Garden.

All for a good cause: The Daybreak presenter was auctioning a kiss off to the highest bidder at the Covent Garden event

She is seen here posing with Louie Spence in a posed photocall, although the winner of the actual auction is yet to be revealed.

In any case, it seems gay Pineapple Dance Studios star Louis was not all that interested in kissing Christine.

Tweeting at tonight's event, the dancer complained: 'Me & Christine Bleakley just turned on the Christmas lights in Covent Garden, I was hoping to see Frank [Lampard]... not a sniff of him.'

Christine, 31, was at the launch night for The Merry Kissmas launch.

People are invited to kiss under the mistletoe, with the electricity of their touch lighting up 50,000 red and white LED lights covering a giant Christmas tree.
